House Speaker McCormack to Retire This Fall

WASHINGTON, May 20 .- House Speaker John W. McCormack, graduate of Boston's "last hurrah" Democratic politics, announced day he will retire from Congress at the close of this session. The 78-year-old, white-haired Rep. McCormack, who has been

Congress since 1928, had previously announced his intention to ek a 22d term this fall as well as re-election as Speaker. He is been under criticism, particularly by younger members, because his age and what some saw as lack of forcefulness and leadership in office. Moreover, the Speaker has been embarrassed in recent months by indictments against both a close personal friend and one of his long-time congressional aides for alleged influence peddling. But today Speaker McCormack said in a statement at a 3 p.m. news conference: This is not a hasty decision on my part. I made this decision prior to the 1968 election. For some years Mrs. McCormack and I have been looking forward to a period of rest and relaxation." Thanks Voters

He thanked the Massachusetts voters for their "faith, confidence and support" in returning him again and again to Congress even before he occupied the powerful Speaker's chair.

He continued, "I take great pride and I am also humbly grateful to my Democratic colleagues in selecting me and electing me in caucus as majority leader, and now Speaker, and to all members of the House for the many courtesies they have extended to me throughout the years. I shall always treasure our association and be grateful to

WASHINGTON, May 20 (NYT) .-- Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew, already a legend of the fairways, demonstrated the same smashing aptitude for tennis today in a match in which he placed a serve with exquisite in-accuracy on the back of his partner's head.

It was not clear immediately, or later, whether the 51-year-old Mr. Agnew intended the ball to smack into the head of his part-ner, Joseph H. Blatchford, director of the Peace Corps, or go over the net.

The Vice-President, asked whether his double-fault serve had been an accident—similar to the golf shot that hit Doug Saniers, a golf professional, in the head during the Boh Hope classic in February—or a joke, re-plied with a smile that gave away nothing: "I seem to be close to the net, awaited the exable to hit people either way." pected return. Mr. Eban pressed the argument that this was a sharp escalation of the Soviet commitment to Moscow's Arab allies, Israeli diplomats said, and should be met by an unequivocal American commitment to help Israel meet the added threat.

The most natural American move in the Israeli view, would be a reversal of Mr. Nixon's decision last Merch to withhold permission for Israel to buy 25 F-4 Phantom jets and 100 A-4 Skyhawks, beyond the 50 Phantoms which Israel is al-

Schumann Sees U.K. Election as Aid to EEC Talks

PARIS, May 20 (AP) .- Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said today that the British elections June . 18 · should mean faster progress on negotlations for Britain's entry into the Common Market, which start in July.

Mr. Schumann was quoted after President Georges Pompidou's regular weekly cabinet meeting by Leo Hamon, the government's spokesman.

"The elections fixed in Britain mean that the European Economic Community will find itself, during the negotiations with the candidate countries, with a British government normally assured of stability." Mr. Schumann said. "Because of this, the negotiations could advance more rapidly to the heart of the problems," he said.

tober, since the United States and other countries that are to operate the stations are enthusiastic.

Other sites are to be chosen only after further study, for the selection of the sites is complicated. It is not enough to find clean air, or at least the nearest available approach to it—the World Meteorological Organization also wants an assurance that there will be no change in the use of the land within a radius of 62 miles during the next 50 years.

This is particularly hard to account for in view of the increase in the carbon dioxide content, since carbon dioxide traps thermal radiation and thus should raise the air temperature. Many experts believe that the fallout from increased use of fossil fuels is deflecting the sun's rays and is thus counteracting the heating effects of the carbon dioxide.

Halvard M. Lange Dies; Long Norwegian Foreign Minister

OSLO, May 20 (UFI).—Halvard M. Lange, 67, one of Scandinavia's best known statesmen and one of the founding fathers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, died last night.

Mr. Lange, who served as Norwegian foreign minister for nearly 20 years, was admitted to a hospital Friday night after suffering a cerebral hemorrhage. However, hospital officials refused to divulge tha exact cause of death.

Mr. Lange's signing of the NATO pact in 1949 and his championing of the cause of Norway's cooperation with the Western world represented a major break with Scandinavia's neutralist tradition. Before Mr. Lange, the generally held viaw among Norwegian politi-cians was that Norway's best foreign policy was to have no foreign policy at all.

Within the NATO alliance, Mr.
Lange became a spokesman for increased cooperation among the nations of the free world and between them and the emerging nations of Africa and Asia. He the Sachsenhausen concentration in all fields.

LONDON, May 20 (AP),-A blind man walked repidly along crowded London street using ultrasonic spectacles that guided him by bouncing echoes off obstacles.

Ivan Plvac, 21, a student at the Royal National Institute for the Blind, made scarcely a mistake as he strode boldly up and down steps and along sidewalks yesterday.

He was able to distinguish an iron fence from a wall and a

Mr. Burns' Trial Balloon

An Asian Peace Plea

But the Asian leaders appear to have especially from the combatants and their

International Opinion

It is good to know that Chairman Arthur F. Burns of the Federal Reserve Board is thinking of unorthodox ways of coping with inflation. The wage-price spiral persists in spite of the government-made recession designed to cure it. Mr. Burns has voiced a nationwide disappointment with the policies pursued thus far, which in part, at least, have heen his policies. Yet it cannot he sald that the Fed chairman has offered a feasible alternative or supplement.

Apparently, Mr. Burns is groping for something that is not yet within his grasp. His most significant comment was: "We should not close our minds to the possibility that an incomes policy, provided it stopped well short of direct price and wage control and was used merely as a supplement to overall fiscal and monetary measures, might speed us through this transitional period of cost-push inflation." To thus commend the search for a policy is a very long way from offering a policy. Indeed, Mr. Burns conceded that other countries which have tried wageprice or income policies have achieved relatively little success, and he acknowledged the same in regard to the wage-price guidelines of the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

The Fed chairman declined to answer any of the hard questions. Could an "incomes policy" for the country he merely proclaimed by the President or would it have to be enacted by Congress to make it meaningful? What chance is there that Congress would accept such a policy? How could it be fairly applied to those industries and unions which have not pressed excessive demands in the past and are now trying to "catch up"? If compliance were to be voluntary, what reason is there to helieve that the policy would be effective? And what justice would there he in exacting sacrifices from cooperative elements in the society while the majority continued to demand their pound of inflation?

The President could, of course, call a conference of husiness, financial and labor leaders and plead with them to resist the continued escalation of prices and wages. He could adopt Housing and Urhan Development Secretary George Romney's suggestion of a "watchdog commission" to focus public attention on excessive price and wage decisions. The effect in both instances might well he to enlist public support for the fight against inflation and to create a climate more conductve to wage and price stability. Mr. Romney's $15,000 cut in his own government salary is not likely to he contagious, hut it is nevertheless a nseful gesture when eo many individuale and groups are pushing wages and prices through the ceiling.

Contributions to an anti-inflationary climate are different, however, from an attempt to fix a national incomes policy. If written into law, such a policy might well prove to be too inflexible and too etifling to a dynamic economy. If not written into law, how could it he other than a pretense or a trap for the conscientlous? It is difficult to avoid the conclusion that, in this instance. Mr. Burns was trying to eat his cake and have it too. If not-if the chairman of the Fed really has in mind some formula that would induce hardheaded corporation executives to hold prices in check and hard-hargaining union leaders to negotiate less inflationary wage settlements, and tough-minded union memhers to accept them-he should hasten to enlighten a waiting nation, At the moment he has succeeded in releasing only the flimsiest sort of trial balloon in an economic whirlwind.

WASHINGTON,-Robert Finch, the Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, is caught in an awkward conflict hetween his convictions and his loyalties, hut the uproar at HEW is more complicated than that, and needs some explanation.

In the first place, there is nothing new about differences between presidents and cabinet members over policies and priorities. John Gardner, Rohert McNamara and Clark Clifford all had fundamental differences with President John-son, which they swallowed for quite force composed of representatives from: a while and didn't really make Japan, Malaysia and Indonesia to seek a clear until they were out of office -and not always then.

The key point is that we are now in an altogether new ball game, quite different from the first quarter century of the cold war and very much more danger-ous. This is the real meaning of the Soviet take-over of the main air defense of Egypt, with Russian fliers, Russian technicians and Russian ground troops.

We are in an altogether new hall game for two reasons. First, the Soviets have never hefore committed Russian troops to a military adventure beyond the recognized borders of the Soviet empire. You can argue thet the Cuban missile crisis might have ended with an exception to this rule; but it would have been a mighty unpleasant exception i Second, the Soviets have never before sought to extend their empire's borders in any important way. By all kinds of methods in all kinds of places, from Korea to Cuba, they have tried to make trouble for the United States and to promote the Communist cause. Until now, however, they have not attempted direct expansion of their own zone of power. But they are

That was true for a couple of years after the six-day war; hut it is now hogwash. The Soviets are playing for much higger stakes than a mere gain of leverage with the Egyptians or Syrians. WASHINGTON-The income tax decision was delivered by the Supreme Court today. A full bench was present and the vote stood five to four against the constitutionality of the law. For the law were Justices Jackson, Harlan, White and Brown. Against it were Chief Justice Fuller, and Justices Field. Gray, Brewer and Shiras. The decision says that a tax on any personal property, as well as on real estate and bonds, is a direct tax, and therefore unconstitutional.

WASHINGTON—It is learned from the most reliable authority that the administration is seriously considering a proposal to write off a considerable portion of the Allied debts to the United States. It is difficult to say just where the proposal originated or whether it is due to some commitments by the President while in Paris, or since his return. But the fact is established that the views of some within the administration are favorable to

It was all part of the Grope Fest, a dazzling costume party held to honor the memory of Walter Gropius founder of the Bauhaus School of Architecture and Design, who died last July at 86. It is less than a since we would be completely impractical. brief period, not only has the professorial former presidential counselor enjoyed the honsymoon accorded anyone taking over a major new governmental responsibility, but he has also moved quickly to establish his own position-credibility, if you will—with Congress and with Wall Street his two most critical constituencies.

With unparalleled access to the White House because of his long-time friendship with the President, and with the vast prestige accumulated in a lifetime of teaching, creative economic research and government service, Mr. Burns clearly has had the opportunity to quickly put his own stamp on the nation's central banking system.

Then why did Mr. Burns choose to break with President Nixon on a sensitive political issuenamely the desirability of an "incomes policy," or wage-price guideline to help control inflation? And why did he choose to make his case in public—before a glittering group of foreign central bankers, government officials and private bankers here for the annual American Bankers Association monetary conference—and thus in-evitably run some risk of allenating those on whom much of his present power rests?

. Making an Impression It might be simply that Mr. Burns was floating a trial balloon for the President. Maybe so. But from public and private comments of high administration officials here, this seems unlikely. Much more probable, it appeared to a number of observers here, Mr. Burns had been for some time making a case in private for some additional tools in the fight against inflation, and having failed to make an impression on the White House, had now decided to use his prestige and bis independence as head of the Fed to take his case to the public. It this is so, it says some very interesting things about the way that the Fed—and Mr. Burns in particular—now view the economic ont-

Mr. Burns was most careful to spell out the limited goals that could be expected from an "incomes policy." Such policies had not worked well in the United States when tried out in the the possibility that an incomes policy . . . might speed us through this transitional period of costpush inflation

What was the economic background that led Mr. Burns to this conclusion-doubly remarkable for him since in the past he has been a severe critic of wage-price guidelines? In the Burnsian view, considerable progress has been made in creating the climate for eventual price stability: Overall business activity has slowed markedly, but the "pervasive and cumulative characteristics of a recession have not developed." largely, he said because of the strength interess investment in new plant and equipment.

"It seems highly probable, morgover," he continued, "that the business slowdown will not extend much further, and that before long we will be enjoying a resumption of growth in industrial output and employment."

The government, meanwhile, has relaxed the restraints it imposed on the economy last year. The Problem Is Prices

However, the rate of increase in prices has not slowed significantly. It is still, in Mr. Sturns's opinion, "far too high." The character of the opinion, "far too high." The character of the inflation has changed from one caused by excess demand, he argued, to one caused by higher costs, particularly wages, forcing prices upward.
For the government, in effect, to reverse itself and start once again to squeeze down on the economy, Mr. Burns said, would be "most unwise," and would court the risk of a "very serious busi-ness recession." And he implied that, given the rocky state of the financial markets just now. serious problems might erupt in Wall Street if the administration and the Fed were to move in such a direction.

Mr. Burns said explicitly that given the changed nature of the inflationary problem, new policies designed to deal with the nature of this change namely an incomes policy-would have to be considered. What he did not say was that the inflation of the last few years has proved to be much tougher, more deeply ingrained and harder to control than anyone especially the administration

Our record... Our offer

Three and a half years ago, we at GRAMCO created a revolutionary financial planning concept: liquid real estate investment.

Today, that concept is world famous, and enjoys the support of probably the most effective sales force that has ever been organized.

It is no secret that GRAMCO's sales force generates the largest cash volume per man in the investment industry ... and it is also a well known fact that our fund, USIF, REAL ESTATE has appreciated 46% in the 40 months since its inception (January 1967) - or better than 13% a year.

USIF, REAL ESTATE has become a shelter for investors throughout the world who have entrusted the achievement of their financial planning goals to GRAMCO's unique real estate concept.

The GRAMCO organization now manages assets in excess of $800 million. These assets are substantially invested in over 200 carefully chosen, income-producing real properties located in the major growth areas of the United States. They represent an investment which has proven to be virtually immune to the fluctuations of the stock market. The performance of USIF, REAL ESTATE has continued to average over 1% a month from income generated by the portfolio and never from upward adjustment of the book value of our properties or revaluation of assets.

In addition to benefitting from generous commissions, our sales associates - the GRAMCO Partners - participate in the most rewarding Stock Option Program in the industry. Their stock in GRAMCO International, S.A. has out-performed all option shares offered to sales associates by any other financial planning company. The GRAMCO International, S.A. stock, because of GRAMCO's impressive and rising earnings, continues to be the most exciting vehicle for participation and profit ever devised.

In 1969, GRAMCO originated a dividend policy which provided for greater immediate income for sales associates while continuing to allow them to share in the Company's growth. (The dividend distribution in 1969 equaled a yield of 100% of the price our sales associates paid for their shares at the original formula price less than three years before.) We are confident that it will be possible to continue this dividend distribution policy.

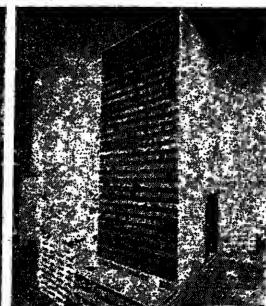

Today, GRAMCO is once again moving into new and profitable areas of financial service, pioneering real estate-based investment concepts designed to be as rewarding to you and your clients as any product we have yet created.

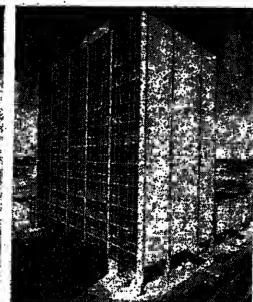

Because of GRAMCO's rapid and continuing expansion, we require an ever-growing number of high-caliber, professional sales associates to market our successful financial planning services. Perhaps you could be one of them.

If you would like to know more about the unlimited opportunities open to you with GRAMCO, please contact:

Investors in Belgium ($664.4 million) last year from 9.9 billion francs in 1968, the Belgian Economic Affairs Ministry said today.

Last year's figure is the largest of the decade. The United States provided 33 percent of the total with 11.09 billion francs, followed by West Germany with 5,38 billion francs and Britain with 5 billion.

The great switch is on

It costs your client NOTHING to switch (all IIG funds are no-load).

"Mr. Mutual Fund", Walter Lutz, switched to IIG. Bob Wagner, former Mayor of New York City, and recently Ambassador to Spain, switched to IIG..

Why did these two big men switch to IIG? Because IIG is the fastest growing financial company in the world. Why are we the fastest growing financial company in the world? Because we pay a full non-reducing commission up to 7% nn all new and switched business for the Real Estate Fund of America and The Fund of the Seven Seas

People with IIG make money. That is the name of our business -MONEY. Salesmen all over the world, from every fund possible, have switched to IIG, and have brought to us millions of dollars in switches. They know their customers. They know what they have bought. They know what their monetary position is. They know their dissatisfactions, and now they are ready to switch. THE GREAT

SWITCH IS ON. Are you as a Salesman and a Manager ready to switch to the Real Estate Fund of America and The Fund of the Seven Seas-HG Products? Make up to 7% non-reducing commission on total business. That is why IIG is the fastest growing financial company in the entire world. Everybody makes money with us. If you are looking for a career with IIG we need Lawyers, Development men. Security men, National Fund Administrators, Book-keepers, Sales Managers, and Real Estate Developers. We intend to double our staff in London from 125 to 250 in the next 45 days...contact DARA MISTRY, Hotel President, Geneva. Tel.: 31.10.06 or DAWN RICE. Senior Vice-President,

P.O. Box 10, Thorn House, London W.C.2. Tel: 01-836 4455. Telex No: 267505. P.S. We also have the "American Plan" every year your clients money stays in the fund we pay you 1% on it.

ARE YOU MAKING $10,000 A YEAR FOR THE REST OF YOUR LIFE? YOU CAN-IF YOU SWITCH TO HG PRODUCTS

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

Many sad stories at the bridge table concern defensive "might-A story of this type was related recently by a veteran expert, Victor Champion of Melbourne, Australia.

On the diagramed deal, an expert and a "little old lady" found themselves defending a slightly unexpected contract of three no-trump.

South opened with a normal bid of one no-trump, and North chose to raise to three notrump, spurning the use of the Stayman convention and the possibility of reaching a majorsuit game. Somewhat for-tuitously, this worked out well for North-South: it prevented East from showing his diamond suit, which would have indicated the killing lead, and it gave West the idea that he should lead a major suit.

When the heart three was opened. South was happy to win with the ten. But he only had seven sure tricks, and it was clear that the other two would have to come from the spade suit.

South led to dummy's spade ace and East disconcerted the declarer by dropping the spade king under the ace, a play that was well-reasoned as well as dramatic. As South had not attempted any spade finesse it was clear that West must have a spade honor, probably the jack. It was vital to give West the opportunity to gain the lead in spades for a diamond play. South led another spade, and realized what was happening when East followed with the nine. The declarer ducked, hoping the nine would win, but West rose to the occasion by overtaking with the spade jack. East lovingly fingered the dismond suit, expecting to take the next six tricks, but West guessed wrongly and led a cinb.

South took nine tricks hurriedly, and East had some-thing to complain about: "You must lead diamonds, not clubs. You want to hit my long suit, so your short suit is the one to describe a considerable improbability. The Italian school system, like the systems in all the countries of the West, is loaded in favor of the middle class. Even more sharply than some systems, it rejects poor chil-dren at a fairly early moment. The handicaps that arise from being poor make them easy to cast out, given a process of schooling that has little interest in compensating for those handicaps. The eight authors of "Letter to a Teacher," none out of his teens, were all discards of this kind. Pessant children from hill country thirty miles from Florence, they have written a masterplece of pro-test: a book that, by any standards, is a profound contribution to the world-wide debate about the new shapes and concepts of education required by the revolution of our time; and an original work of literature, to boot.

West apologized, and West was the expert. It was the woman who was in the East seat and had made the brilliant play of dropping the spade "Little old ladies" be smart players.

Not very likely—but here it is. It began with the ordering of a priest, Don Lorenzo Milani, to the church at Barbiana in 1954. In his previous parish, Don Lorenzo had started a successful doposcuola—sn after-hours school—for poor children who had been flunked out of the regular schools, or were trailing far behind. The situation of such children in Barbiana was even worse, so he gathered to-gether a group and gave them, eight hours of school work a day, six or seven days a week. (Part of the stinging scorn of the young authors is directed at the short hours worked by teachers elsewhere: "Your work schedule is really indecent. A laborer works 2,150 hours s. year. You, from a maximum. of 738 hours to a minimum of 468"). The children taught one another. The oldest teacher was sixteen; the youngest twelve. "Letter to a Teacher" ("Dear Miss," it begins. "You won't remember me or my You have flunked so

And here I'd better talk of how it's written, though the an-thors might consider that critical praise of their manner may be a way of distracting attention from what they've written. The style was based on what the boys called "the humble and ing in all ages: "Have something important to say ... Know for whom you are writing. Eliminate every useless word. Eliminate every word not used in the spoken language."

In the second half of the letter, the authors turn to teacher training and their decided sstatingly simple plan of form. "The Reforms That W. Propose," it reads. "1. Do " fall students, 2. Give a full-time school to children who seek stupid. 3. Give a purpose the lazy." Again, I don't see how it could be better forms lated.

Black Coach and a White Team in a N.C. Town The intensity of the opposition sur wouldn't dream of asking for anything

By J. Anthony Lukas

BURLINGTON, N.C.-When the Bulldoes of Walter Williams High School the hands before taking the field one Friday night next September, most of those hands probably will be white.

But over on the bench, the hands on the clipboard will be black. They belong to Jerome Evans, Williams's new football coach and the first black man to become head football coach at any predominantly white high school in the state.

Coach Evans's appointment in April stirred a week-long furor that brought this small testile city in North Carolina's

Picdmont crescent to the brink of what some officials feared could be its second open racial confrontation in less than Skiliful accommodation by school officless and the moderating influence of the city's business leadership headed off

In most Southern towns, high school football and basketball games are major community events, drawing thousands of parents, neighbors and friends to scraggly fields or drafty auditoriums and arousing almost tribal loyalties.

Over the last decade of school integration in the South, whites who wanted a winning team have grudgingly accepted talented black players. But where integration meant the merging of a black minority with a white majority, it elso usually meant the retention of the white term's coach, colors, cheers and songs. "We were supposed to be so happy to play ball for good old Honky High we else." one black player said recently.

In an era of black militancy, this arrangement is increasingly being chal-One Killed in Rioting

Last spring, when Williams High School was only 5 percent black, the elec-tion of an all-white cheerleading squad set off three days of black rioting here in which one person died several were injured and property valued at thousands of dollars was damaged. And as Burlington moved toward full integration of its high school next fall, the black community let it be known that it wanted at least one black coach out of the four football and basketball head coaches in the two integrated high The school board, with its eve partly on last spring's events, promptly agreed. After lengthy consultations it gave the

Williams football post to Evans, the coach at Jordan Sellers High School, tha all-black institution that will be abolished next fall. And to make way for him, it named C.A. Frye, the white man who bas coached football at Williams for ten years, as director of athletics for both integrated high schools. But Frye, a blunt, hot-tempered man, palked. He said he wanted at least one more year at Williams where-with the seniors from Sellers' strong team com-bined with his own returning lettermen concerned when they learned that some of the most active segregationists in the area—reportedly including elements of the Ku Klux Klan (always active in Almance County) and the John Birch Society-were planning to attend a secand large rally in the school auditorium. They feared that this would also bring in "the Durham crowd," the name used here for the black militants around the Malcolm X University in nearby Durham. With this potential for head-on confrontation between extremists, Burlington's moderate center galvanized for action. The executive committee of the Chamber of Commerce—including some of the most prominent executives in this industrial city—began meetings with all sides. By mid-April, Frye was persuaded to back down and take the athletic director's tob.

So not long ago, in his cramped office. Evans was putting together what some fans considered Burlington's "dream

If the cabinet officer still insists on seeing the President, he is escorted into the White House and asked to wait in the secret servicemen's locker room.

A third assistant to a White House aide is then sent to the locker room to see if he can persuade the cabinet officer to leave the White House without causing trouble. He tries to assure the cabinet officer that Mr. Nixon is always happy to hear what anyone in his ad-ministration has to say, and suggests that the best way for a cabinet officer to communicate with the President is through his congressman.

If this fails, the cabinet officer is then taken to the waiting room of the stenographic pool, where a secretary of one of the White House aides is sent to talk to him.

Occasionally a cabinet officer will still insist on seeing someone in higher authority and then he will be taken to the Navy mess in the White House to talk to one of the minor White House aides, while the aide is having lunch.

The Gauguins Of Copenhagen

Detail of self-portrait Paul Gauguin

By Jan Sjöby

COPENHAGEN. - Paul Gauguin, the painter, could not stand the place, for love or money. He left Copenhagen in anger, returned to Paris, went on to Tahiti and wound up, finally, in the Marquesas.

But the name of Gauguin is not forgotten in the Danish capital. There are too many Gauguins in the phone book and, in addition, the famous New Carlsberg Giyptothek gallery has a very fine Gauguin collection.

Then there are the stories about Paul Gauguin, the arrogant Paris-born son of B journalist from Orleans and a woman partly of Peruvian descent. These stories have been handed down through generations. How he, for example, threw a glass of water in the face of a high railway official, ruining his future as a tarpaulin salesman.

Gauguin, remember, quit his job with a Paris bank in 1883 and started painting. full-time. Out of money, he moved to Copenhagen with his Danish-born wife, Mette Gad-Gauguin, in 1885. He could not stand the Danes and the Danes could not stand him. He left within a few months.

Their marriage was an impossible deal, explains Paul René Gauguin, one of Paul's grandsons. "Grandma was a member of the Copenhagen Establish ment, the Gads were one of The Hundred Families. Grand-pere was a rebel even by rebel post-Impressionist standards." Gauguin, left with his favorite son.

Clovis. Mette and four other little Gauguins stayed behind. Aline, a celebrated Copenhagen beauty in the 90s, died young. Two sons became wellknown Scandinavian artists; Jean René, sculptor and member of the Royal Danish Academy, and Jean Rollen better known as "Pola", painter and art critic. Both died in 1961.

A third son, Emil, emigrated to the New World. He lived in Colombia for a while, ended up in Florida. He died in 1955, at 81,

"Emil was a man of considerable talent." comments Pierre Gauguin, son of Jean Rene. family historian and engineer with the Danish Atomic Energy Commission. "He did B lot of drawings, a lot of paintings. Trouble with him was that he tore overything up once be had completed it. The shadow of papa fell too heavily upon him, I suppose."

"Look at my cousin Pedro Maria. son of Emil, born in Colombia. He is a talented man too, but he works as a detective captain with the Copenhagen Police Department. If his name had been Jensen or Madsen, he'd have been B great artist. As it is, he's an amateur. Pedro Maria returned to Europe at a tender age. He sowed wild oats in London and Paris, led the life of grand-père and his friends at places like La Coupole, Le Dome, and Les Deux Magots. He fought as a volunteer with the Finnish Army in the 1939 war and returned to Copenhagen one day before the Nazi occupation in April, 1940.

"Pierre considers me an amateur." Says Pedro Maria. "Do you know the true meaning of the word amateur, stemming from the Latin amare, to love? I am an amateur, I love to paint. love to paint things I want to paint." Fierre's balf-sister, Lulu Gauguin, is a producer of children's programs on Danish television. Her real name is Lucretia. Only one of the Gauguin grandchildren is actively engaged in the fine arts: Pola's son, Paul René. residing in suburban Svanemollen, north of central Copenhagen. At the age of 59, he is now an established painter-sculptor. But he spent most of his life trying to avoid becoming an artist. After grade school studies in Norway, Paul Rene was sent off to France. He got his bachot in Rouen in 1930. He set off on his bicycle afterwards, to find out what the end of the road looked like. He wound up on Ibiza and spent four years there as a professional fisher-When the civil war broke out, he joined the Republican Army.

"I wasn't with the International Brigade or anything like that," says, Paul Rene. "After four years on Ibiza, I spoke Catalan fairly well. I joined a Catalan anarchist outfit. They called us Commiss at the time but we certainly were not Commies Commies and anarchists are entirely different things.

"I worked with any job I could find after the war: as a journalist and translator, as a stage designer. Anything to stay out of painting and sculpture."

His fingers kept itching, though. He turned out things, drawings, woodcuts, sculptures, paintings, collages. He made his debut as an artist in an Oslo show. in 1938. His things were signed "PRG." They still are. He had his first one-man show in Osio, prints and woodcuts, in

"That was it, I suppose," says Paul Rene, "I had wanted to, all the time, but the name of Gauguin hung like a millstone around my neck. I kept on from there, painting, carving, drawing, working things out. But I can't work like grand-père. He was a rebel, a revolutionary. Im a traditionalist, as I see it myself. I make pictures, out of wood, chunks of metal, canvas and paint of things I've seen, sensed, experienced."

Paul René, today, is well-established and he doesn't have to worry about meals or monthly bills. His pictures sell for some $2,000 a piece, mainly in Norway, Sweden and the United States.

None of the Gauguin grandchildren ever met his grandfather. Paul Gauguin died six years before the first of them was born. The stories they know about him are stories they have read in biog-

Austria, this weekend for its third annual meeting.
